

Hello, My father (who is now 88 yrs old) had a brother, William Donish who was killed, as he stated, "the day before the peace treaty was signed." The only information my Dad can remember currently is: William entered the Army in March, 1942; was in the Army's Third Infantry Division in WWII; was killed after the Battle of the Bulge; and said that the government at one time told the family William was killed in Germany after stepping on a landmine and another time stated he was shot dead in France.

I would love to gather any information possible for my Dad, and also my family. Dad is so happy that I am interested enough to request information. Please help.

Sgt. William J. Donish is listed on page 484 of Donald Taggart's book, The History of the Third Infantry Division in World War II as a member of the 15th Infantry Regiment and Killed in Action. If you can provide any information please contact Barbara at:

Hello, I found your site and wondered if you could help me. My uncle served in the 3rd. during WW2. I am trying to collect items that he would have worn on his uniform. He passed away in 2000 so I can't ask him. I have a black and white photo but it's hard to make out what's on the coat. I also have his serial no.

Can you help or maybe point me in the right direction? Thank you either way, I think your site is very nice.

His name was Pvt. Mozelle Bond. I also have his serial number 34587036. I know he received his basic training at Camp Jackson, Miss. and worked for awhile at Napier Field, Al. I guess what I would like to know is the unit he was in and which campaign ribbons he would have had. Thanks very much, Susan Bostick

Subject: God Bless America.

It was late one Tuesday evening,
Before a mother could sit down,
To tell her only child about
The terror that hit downtown.
She looked into the eyes of her son
God, she loved him so,
She felt her heart begin to break.
And the hurt begin to show.
She gathered all her strength and courage,
As her story she began to tell.
"Baby don't cry, but I'm afraid daddy
Might be under a building that fell."
The boy looked back at his mother,
His eyes made not one blink.
And the mother's tears began to fall.
What would her baby think?
You see, his dad is a firefighter,
And his hero from the day of his birth.
He loved his dad more than anything else
That could ever inherit this earth.
The mother's head began to drop,
Her forehead resting on palm.
She thought her son would be upset.
Instead, he was very calm.
The boy leaned over towards his mom,
And put his hand upon her head.
In her ear he began to whisper,
And this is what he said:
"Mommy please don't cry,
I knew daddy wasn't coming home.
I talked to him just a while ago,
But it wasn't on the phone.
He told me that he loved me,
And he promised we'd meet again.
He told of his new home,
And the job he was to begin."
"God is building an army,
And there are many angels needed.
That, is where daddy and the others went.
They weren't all defeated."
It was then, the mother lifted her head.
The tears streamed down her face.
And she could feel her husband's presence,
As it filled her heart with grace.
It was then she knew her son was right.
He was in God's great army now.
She also knew her son was safe,
That he'd be kept from harm somehow.
So, evil-doers of the world beware.
An army is on the way.
Bolstered by new angels,
Who left the towers that day.
Their commander has never been beaten.
His power has never been matched,
And if evil thinks He was almighty before...
Well, the surface has just been scratched!
GOD BLESS AMERICA !!!!!

Additional Anzio Remembrance

The following is a brief remembrance of my life in a fox hole on the Anzio beachhead, Italy, During World War II. It is dedicated to Col. John W. Blaikie, company commander on Anzio, who left us on July 4th, 2002 may he "Rest in Peace"

From D-Day, (Jan, 22nd 1944) the day we landed on the Anzio beachhead, the days passed into weeks and then into months, very few of those infantry soldiers who made the D-Day landing, survived the long battle for control of those few miserable miles of swamp land.

During the many months we fought at Anzio, the infantry soldier was confined and bound to a 3 foot by 7 foot by 2 foot deep dirt hole, some genius, had described it as a fox hole, in fact it should have been called an empty grave site.

During the daylight hours, we were unable to leave or even stand up while in our fox hole, for fear of being shot by enemy sharp shooters, All movement on the front line, took place in the safety, of the dark of night. The enemy held all of the high ground around the beachhead and could observe all our actions on the front line and even the activities on the beach, five miles behind us.

During the night, men of the graves registration unit would quietly drive their jeeps close to the front and collect the bodies of those who had been killed on that day, (if possible!) the company medics also took the wounded back to field hospitals on the beach.

Every night a number of inexperienced replacements were brought to the line and assigned to vacant foxholes, many of these men did not last more than a few days.

Those in the foxholes could leave their holes only at night to relieve themselves, that is if we were not being shelled by enemy artillery and mortars or being attacked by enemy troops. It was than the platoon leaders could send men back to our company headquarters to obtain food, water, and ammunition. I don't remember if we ever received mail in a foxhole.

A lifetime (58 years) has passed since we were on Anzio, but the memory, at least a portion of those events, is still with all us who were there.

During our time on the front, we could not wash or change our clothes, personal hygiene was a lost art, it is possible that the enemy did not attack us more often, due to the fact that, we stunk like hell,

During the rainy season of winter and spring, rain filled our foxholes with water, and they became bathtubs. How lucky we were. In those few moments of peace and quiet, we left our surroundings by escaping into our daydreams, and fantasies by using our imagination to visit with our mothers, fathers, our wives or girl friends or indulge in fictitious dreams to escape the boredom and horror of combat and a life of anxiety.

The fear of being blown apart by an artillery shell, or being shot by an enemy soldier, and also the hazard of contacting an illness, such as jaundice, dysentery or malaria and a dozen other illnesses, was ever present in our minds.

A lifetime (58 years) has passed since we were on Anzio, but the memory, at least a portion of those events, is still with all us who were there.

Finally on May 23rd 1944 we broke through the German lines and began our journey north (approximately 35 miles) to capture the city of Rome, after one hundred and twenty three days of combat on the Anzio Beachhead. It was wonderful being on the attack again.

A dear friend once commented that we did not show fear, only angst, for not being able to break out of this hell hole.

■ The Henri-Chapelle American Cemetery, Henri-Chapelle, Belgium

They did not return, but they are not forgotten

My brother in law Harry M. Bourke was killed in action at Aachen, Germany on Oct. 19, 1944. He was buried in the American Cemetery, Henri-Chapelle in Belgium. The cemetery dates back to World War I. Originally interred here were twenty five pilots from the famous "Esquadrielle."

There are 7,989 buried at Henri-Chapelle Cemetery and 450 honored missing.

My mother in law wisely decided not to bring Harry home because she didn't want to rehash the grief. Dad was finally beginning to look good after three years. My in laws kept their feelings to themselves and really tried to make life normal for the family.

We were in Amsterdam on our Easter vacation, Nov. 25 1970 when my wife and I decided that we should go to the cemetery. Patrick, 15 and Kieran, 12 were with us. When I made inquiry at the railway station the response was incredible. Three clerks rushed to help us. I was hustled into a picture booth and my picture was taken. Next thing a photo I.D. was pinned to my jacket. The fare charged me for four people across Holland and most of Belgium was so many guilders amounting to fifteen US dollars. I'm sure that this was a gift from my Dutch friends.

We were in a comfortable compartment. I doubt that we were entitled to it. When the conductor came by to check the tickets, he gave me a big spiel in Dutch. I just nodded my head, smiled and said "Ya." We enjoyed the trip across the two beautiful countries.

We arrived at a place called Vise, Belgium. There was a trainman at the tiny station. My wife explained the matter in her high school French. The station manager left and was back with a big old Lincoln car with a driver. We drove a few miles and in the distance you could see the American flag. As we approached the flag kept getting bigger. After a few minutes court-martialed was Puerto Rican, in spite of the fact that most of the officers and commanders of the units of the 65th were Continental Americans.

The Puerto Rican draftees of 1952 were severely punished by an uncaring Continental chain of command intent on making an example out of them to cover for their own leadership mistakes and failures. This is the same chain of command that ignored similar incidents during several other "Bug Out" incidents by Continental units during the same time period of the war. There was a double standard in which the soldiers of the 65th were punished but soldiers from other Continental Regiments were forgiven.

First line leadership was very scarce in the 65th Infantry. The soldiers of the 65th Infantry at the time of the battle of Jackson Heights had very few Sergeants, Non Commissioned Officers (NCOs) to provide first line supervision. Most of the squad leaders were fellow draftee soldiers who had just arrived in Korea. So Privates were being lead into combat by fellow Privates who had been recently promoted to Private First Class and given the responsibility of Squad leader. In many cases Platoons only had a Corporal as the Platoon Sergeant. Leadership was in short supply and if the officers became casualties the soldiers would quickly become confused and not know what to do. This is exactly what happened at Jackson Heights with A Company.

The NCO leadership problem could have been resolved by the assignment of bilingual Puerto Rican NCO's who were being shipped to Korea specifically to serve in the 65th, however; the Army in Korea chose to divert these critical leaders to other units in Korea, depriving the 65th of the sergeants it so desperately needed. So in 1952 the Army in Korea was warehousing its Spanish speaking Enlisted Men in one unit and diverting Puerto Rican Sergeants off to other units. The 65th was being set up for eventual disaster. How can a unit be expected to perform its mission without Sergeants? The results of this policy, is what eventually happened at Jackson Heights.

Some have blamed all the Regiments problems on the "language barrier". The language barrier had always been present in the 65th ever since the unit was created in 1899. It had been overcome by well trained and experienced Sergeants in the Regiment. This was proven from the day the 65th arrived in Korea in September 1950 through 1951, when the 65th distinguished itself in numerous battles from the Pusan perimeter, fighting in North Korea with XX Corps and constant combat with its sister regiments in the 3rd Division fighting its way back north from the Han River to the Iron Triangle.

Training was another factor that has to be looked at when determining what happened. By September 1952 the 65th Infantry was operating with at least 1/3 of its soldiers being brand new green replacements. Most of those soldiers only had basic training and what little unit training their commanders could give them during breaks in combat. Due to the unique language problems of the Puerto Rican soldier, additional training was needed.

Recently an Army historian stated that the Company Commanders were confused on Jackson Heights. My investigation has revealed that the Company Commander knew exactly what was expected of them. One of them died trying to follow the orders he had received. The last minute change issued by the Regimental Commander caused a change in orders once the units reached Objective Able, but the Company Commanders understood their new orders and did their best to accomplish their mission.

In summary, the racial attitudes of the 1950's, Army policies in Korea, senior leadership failures from the Regimental Commander and higher, shortage of NCO's, a self inflicted language barrier, and insufficient training destroyed the morale and fighting ability of a once proud and distinguished regiment which had gallantly served and proven itself for two years in the war.

Perhaps Brigadier General Thomas E. Phillips said it best when he wrote a letter to the St. Louis Post Dispatch on 27 January 1953 and stated, "The Army has failed to recognize the peculiar problems of organizing and commanding men who are basically as foreign as the Spanish or the French." BG Phillips came close to describing the problem, but too late to save a unique regiment of American Soldiers.

American society and the U.S. Army have both made enormous improvements and overcome most of the despicable behavior of 50 years ago. Treating your soldiers with respect is a part of leadership that is stressed in the leadership training of today. As one of the Continental Officers of the 65th told me, "It is a poor carpenter who blames his tools".

Today the 65th Infantry continues to serve as an element of the Puerto Rico National Guard. Yes, the 65th Infantry has endured and is again, the Puerto Rican Regiment! Some of its soldiers have been mobilized in the war against terror and cherish the regimental motto, "Honor and Fidelity".

Current Events

In September 2000, then Secretary of the Army, Louis Caldera made a speech at Arlington National Cemetery to commemorate the Veterans of the 65th Infantry. I was there. In part of his speech he stated:

"But even as the 65th struggled against deadly enemies in the field, they were fighting a rearguard action against a more insidious adversary - the cumulative effects of ill-conceived military policies, leadership shortcomings, and especially racial and organizational prejudices, all exacerbated by America's unpreparedness for war and the growing pains of an Army forced by law and circumstances to carry out racial integration. Together these factors would take their inevitable toll on the 65th, leaving scars that have yet to heal for so many of the regiment's proud and courageous soldiers."

I observed veterans in the crowd crying when they heard this confession from the Secretary of the Army! While other nations battle for centuries with tribal and racial hate and prejudice, only in America can such a change occur in the hearts of our citizens so quickly.

In 2001 the Center of Military History published a historical review which exonerated LTC Carlos Betances-Ramirez, the 2nd Battalion Commander of the 65th Infantry who was relieved shortly after the battle of Jackson Heights. Shortly afterward in October 2001, while seriously ill in the hospital, LTC Betances-Ramirez was presented the Bronze Star he had earned 49 years previously, thanks to the untiring efforts of the son of his Fox Company Commander, Willis Cronkhite, Jr. LTC Betances died a few days later on 28 October 2001. Ironically it was 49 years after that fateful day in 1952.

In January 2002 the Board for Correction of Military Records formally published its finding that LTC Carlos Betances-Ramirez had been treated in an "inequitable" manner. After 49 years, the Army officially admitted that they had treated him unfairly. His files and the official history of the regiment were officially modified to reflect this fact in March 2002.

Presently two fellow researchers and I have written to the President of the United States and requested that the 92 Puerto Rican soldiers, who had been court-martialed, be officially exonerated. We also requested that the 65th Infantry Historical Review, prepared by the Center of Military History, be formally released to the public. We are still waiting for a response.

Note About the Story

The above story was prepared based on copies of historical reports at the National Archives, court-martial documents, personal accounts, letters from the period given to the author, books on the Korean War, by both Continental and Puerto Rican authors, and personal interviews with the Korean War veterans of the 65th Infantry Regiment. I have deliberately removed the names of some of the Veterans to protect their privacy. I am solely responsible for the content of this story.

Note About the Author

The author, Lieutenant Colonel Baltazar (Bart) Soto, is a 1976 graduate of the ROTC and the Inter-American University of Puerto Rico. He is a U.S. Army Reserve Officer and graduate of the Command and General Staff College.

If you are a Veteran of the 65th Infantry and eyewitness to the events of Jackson Heights and Outpost Kelly please write me at:

Notices, Notes & Reminders

Important News for Local Outposts

During the past reunion, several officers from local outposts inquired about the coding that appears on their rosters, reporting of new members and the frequency of reports that are sent.

- On your roster report, the coding of "D" indicates a deceased member.
- The coding of "DD" indicates a delinquent dues member.
- The coding of "B" indicates a bad address with mail returned as undeliverable.
- The coding of "T" indicates the member has had mail returned.
- The coding of "TT" indicates the member has had mail returned twice.
- Members coded "D," "DD," "B," and "TT" are suspended from receiving copies of "The Watch"

Deceased members remain on the rosters until their names are read at the National Reunion. They are then removed.

New members are reported every other month in the "Watch." Every quarter, National sends original copies of the new members to the local outposts. So, six times a year you receive a listing of new members and 4 times a year you receive the new membership applications. New outpost rosters and reimbursements are made on a quarterly basis.

A Call for Help

With the advent of the new billing system, local outposts have not had the need to bill their membership nor make roster adjustments. National requests the assistance of local outposts with the collection of delinquent membership dues. National has billed all annual dues members. We have also billed the delinquents twice. We have so noted in the August issue of the Watch that it would be the last issue sent until the dues are paid. With the last reports sent, local outposts know who their delinquent members are. We are asking you to get involved by re-billing these members from your end. We can assist by sending you name and address labels for those members. Please contact National for the labels. Together we can minimize this difficult task.

Thank you,
Ray Anderson, National Secretary /Treasurer

Attention all Snowbirds

It's vital that you inform National Roster Management of your new address if you intend to head south for the winter months. We will need this in order to continue to mail your copy of the Watch while you are lounging around the parade of bikinis. Your cooperation will be appreciated.

Ray Anderson, National Secretary /Treasurer

What an honor it is to be appointed as the National Chaplain of the Society of the Third Infantry Division. I want to take this opportunity to ensure our President, Jerry Manley, and each of our members that I will try, with the help of God, to take up where Jerome Sapiro, the previous chaplain of the Society, left off.

Needless to say, I was not always a chaplain. I served as a rifleman with Able Company, 15th "Can-Do" Regiment in Korea. Currently, I am a pastor at the Crystal Cathedral in Garden Grove, California. The following poem, which I wrote, was recently printed in the Fifteenth Infantry Regiment Association Newsletter. Hopefully, you will enjoy it

"THANK GOD I'M A VETERAN"

When you look at my frail body, what do you really see;
an old man; someone over the hill, or the real me?

I certainly realize that I am not as young as I used to be,
But don't get hung up on my age; let me identify what you see:

My many wrinkles that remind me of the trenches in Korea,
Where so many of my fellow soldiers died, serving our country.

My gray hair remind me of the minus 20 degrees, the cold, the snow;
Then an inexperienced teenager, at the time so young, now so very old.

I move slower now, reminding me of how we walked in Korea, sometimes, especially while on patrol, walking where we expected land mines.

My failing eyesight reminds me of Korea's morning mist and fog, straining to detect the enemy; is that a man? No only a log.

Then in the evening when there was no moon, no visibility at all,
Is that the enemy approaching? No, just some trees standing tall.

Then the sound of a tank, noisy loud engines roaring from afar,
It's the enemy, no it's our own, we identify it by the white star.

A wart on my arm reminds me of the outposts where we were dwelling, completely bare, no trees or any vegetation due to artillery shelling.

My hearing, slowly fading away, much poorer than when I was young, is that really due to aging, or was it affected by some loud gun?

I stand, after setting awhile, I hear noises from bones in my back'
The same sound as when the enemy approached causing twigs to crack.

These teeth are not mine, my real ones are some where over there,
For fifty years I have eaten soft foods; a steak I wouldn't dare.

War can be quite ugly, not the ugliest of things for one to see;
Much uglier is the man who won't fight; he leaves that to you and me.

So I will stand tall when our anthem plays and our flag passes by;
I will be thinking of those who served, who sacrificed, who died.

I can look back now and feel content for serving my country;
I believe I did make a difference; yes even elderly, aging me.

Please feel free to contact me at anytime.

Chaplain, Chuck Trout

Pledge

I pledge to the Society of the Third Infantry Division, United States Army, in the achievement of the objects for which it is formed, that same full measure of loyalty and devotion which my comrades who have fallen gave to the Division itself and to the cause for which it fought.

Through my loyalty and devotion to their memory, their loyalty and devotion shall no more be forgotten by the Country for which they died than by the comrades at whose side they fell.

To them, I pledge, in peace the dedication of myself to that Country, that cause and those ideas of right and civilization, to which they consecrated themselves in War.
